

A technical drawing of a mechanical component, possibly a valve or actuator, shown from a perspective view. The component has a cylindrical body with a flange at one end and a smaller cylindrical section at the other. A central shaft or rod extends through the center. There are various ports, openings, and structural details visible, including what appears to be a small circular feature on the side of the main cylinder.

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

INDEX